Building Stronger Relationships for a Lifetime of Success

People Choose Services, Where They Work and Personal Goals.

According to Cook (2004), “the Federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services identify four essential elements of self-directed care.” (p.1).

1. Person Centered Planning– which places supports and necessary services in place.
2. Individual Budgeting– which helps establish control over how funds used for the individual are spent.
3. Financial Management Services– tools used to track and monitor budgets and Documentation of clients.
4. Supports Brokerage– includes educational and operational assistance.

Ramseur Homes helps individuals with mental health and substance abuse to achieve recovery. As an outcome, it empowers individuals we serve and it displays to be more “consumer” oriented. Self determination helps a individual build meaningful lives with effective opportunities to develop and achieve valued life goals (Cook. (2004), p.2). Ramseur Homes displays how their consumer have a full sense of decision making by:

1. Having freedom to live in the community.
2. Authority over the funds needed for self care.
3. Support for consumers efforts to make sound judgments for themselves.
4. Responsibility for maintaining services, choosing services and daily task.
5. Participation– opportunity for consumer to be involved in the system of care.

At a individual level, Ramseur Homes values and principles include:

Freedom of choice, control over one’s own life, personal responsibility and access to services and supports. We have implemented contingency, crisis planning and advance directives to ensure that consumers choices are understood and respected. (Cook (2004), p.3).
